Business intelligence

Giving everyone within the organisation a powerful way to work with data. Microsoft BI is based on SQL Server Technology that provides enhanced security and scalability. The server has been voted as the least vulnerable database for 5 consecutive years.

Voted the least vulnerable database for 5 consecutive years.

Data representation and reporting

Empowers users to build traditional, paper-oriented or fully-interactive, web-based reports with the familiar Microsoft Office look and feel, allowing them to personalise their reports to accommodate different audiences

Representing data in SharePoint

Displays content within a web browser in an understandable and collaborative environment by means of interactive dashboards. Visualises KPIs and other reports in the form of scorecards and analytical reports, with advanced filtering, guided navigation and interactive analytical features. Provides status indicators through one-line reports that show whether performance is on or off target for a particular measure

Financial and operational reporting

Provide users with access to a highly scalable platform for financial and operational reporting for browser-based viewing and ad-hoc data exploration and visualisation.

Self-service

Collaboration

Microsoft SharePoint and Microsoft Office 365 enables employees to collaborate easily with team members on specific projects, find organisation resources, manage content and share ideas all within a single integrated system.

Document management

Consolidate diverse content from various files and personal drives into one central document repository. Documents are managed by business units and functions. Document templates allow for new documents to comply with predefined standards

Document approval workflow

Routes documents from one person to another, so that each user is capable of completing his/her own document management tasks by means of a workflow process. The receiver of the document is notified about a new pending document needing his/her attention, and is directed to it for approval, publication, signing or disposition

Search

Fast document retrieval, as well as across documents metadata, is accommodated with the capabilities of narrowing down searches through filtering and refining. This is performed by displaying search results listed by date, author, location, content type, relevance or pre-defined metadata tags. This is also applicable for scanned documents

Enables collaboration, organisation, sharing and management from a single location.

Version management

Enables exclusive editing by one user. Upon check-in, a new version with the latest changes is created, without discarding earlier versions of the document. Document retention policy enables control of a document lifecycle, which is particularly relevant for compliance-related documentation.

Shared team workspace

The ability to create project or department team-based sites for sharing of calendars and meeting notes, tracking of individual's work progress and the collection of team emails and documents in a single location.

Reporting dashboards

Data from disparate business systems are presented on consolidated dashboards, enabling a complete view of individual and team progress as well as KPI analysis.
