Product overview

Over 80% of consumers search online before purchasing a product or service. We live in a digital economy, if you don't have a compelling website, your potential customers are shopping elsewhere.

If, however, your website is a primary tool to attract customers, shouldn't you be hosting with a reputable company? Unlike most providers, our web hosting sits on the same platform that supports our multi-billion Rand ISP business. This means speed and reliability - the two key components for a successful website.

Whatever the budget, Vox has the solution to meet your business requirements. With Windows and Linux hosting solutions, which are built on easy to use control panel, you're able to administrate and manage your website content.
